COMPLAINT

(Three-Judge Court pursuant to G.S.
1-267.1)

Plaintiffs, the North Carolina State Conference of Branches of the NAACP, the League of Women Voters of North Carolina, Democracy North Carolina, North Carolina A. Philip Randolph Institute, and all twenty-seven individual Plaintiffs named above allege and state:

I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. Ignoring decades of progress and the current realities of racially polarized voting in North Carolina elections, the General Assembly's Congressional, House and Senate redistricting plans enacted following the release of the 2010 Census data are an intentional and cynical use of race that exceeds what is required to ensure fairness to previously disenfranchised racial minority voters. The plans violate North Carolina voters' rights to equal protection under the law by assigning voters to districts based on their race beyond what is required by the Voting Rights Act. These race-based assignments unfairly prejudice the African-American voters who were split off from the rest of their voting precincts, divided from otherwise compact communities of interest, and packed into districts that previously elected candidates of choice of African-American voters. They also harm the African Americans left in districts with fewer minority voters and the non-African-American voters who are also thereby packed in race-based districts and whose communities of interests are dismantled.

2. In addition to being excessively race-based, all three plans brazenly flout North Carolina's state constitutional requirements to draw geographically compact districts that respect county boundaries and encompass communities of interest. The plans unnecessarily and unjustifiably split hundreds of voting precincts throughout the state, the traditional markers of communities of interest. Dividing precincts and the communities of interest they represent results in non-compact districts that hinder the effective participation of voters in the democratic process.

3. The plans divide 563 precincts with two million voting-age adults (27% of the state's total) into more than 1,400 sections, with voters in the same neighborhood or same street partitioned into different political districts. The number of split precincts is unprecedented and far exceeds alternative plans that comply with federal and state law. They have the design and effect to segregate voters by race. In a majority of cases, the sections are drawn so that the black voting-age population in one section is 20 percentage points greater than in the other section sent to another district. The confusion for voters, community educators, election administrators and the elevated risks to a fair election process caused by splitting precincts on a census block basis are undeniable. More than one-third of the state's black voting-age population resides in these 563 precincts. A black adult has a 50 percent greater risk of living in a precinct split up by the plans than does a white adult. White adults are six times more likely to live in a split precinct if they reside in a precinct that is more than 25 percent black than if they live in one that is less than 10 percent black.

4. This action challenges the redistricting plans adopted by the General Assembly on the grounds that they violate the equal protection guarantees of the state and federal constitutions and that they violate state constitutional provisions designed to ensure that legislative districts are drawn in a way that promotes representative democracy. In addition, the excessive partisanship driving these plans violates the North Carolina Constitution's guarantee that the legislature should act for the "good of the whole." The Plaintiffs, nonprofit, nonpartisan organizations and individual impacted voters, seek injunctive relief to prevent the use of those plans in any future elections.

II. JURISDICTION AND VENUE

5. This Court has jurisdiction of this action pursuant to Articles 26 and 26A of Chapter 1 of the North Carolina General Statutes.

6. The Court has jurisdiction of the federal claims pursuant to 42 USC § 1983.

7. Pursuant to G.S. 1-81.1, the exclusive venue for this action is the Wake County Superior Court.

8. A three-judge court must convene in this matter pursuant to G.S. 1-267.1 because this action challenges the validity of redistricting plans enacted by the General Assembly.

III. PARTIES

9. The NC Conference has members who are citizens and registered voters in each of the State's 100 counties and in the 40 counties covered by the Voting Rights Act. The fundamental mission of the NAACP is the advancement and improvement of the political, educational, social, and economic status of minority groups; the elimination of racial prejudice; the publicizing of adverse effects of racial discrimination; and the initiation of lawful action to secure the elimination of racial bias. In furtherance of this mission, the NC Conference advocates to ensure that the interests of the African-American community are represented on the local, state and national legislative bodies by representatives who share the community's interests, values and beliefs and who will be accountable to the community. The NC Conference encourages and facilitates nonpartisan voter registration drives by its chapters to promote civic participation.

The mission of LWVNC is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation in government and to act on selected governmental issues. The LWVNC impacts public policies, promotes citizen education, and makes democracy work by, among other things, removing unnecessary barriers to full participation in the electoral process. Currently LWFNC has 16 local leagues and over 972 members, each of whom, on information and belief, is a registered voter in North Carolina. With members in almost every county in the state, the LWFNC's local leagues are engaged in numerous activities, including hosting public forums and open discussions on issues of importance to the community. Individual league members invest substantial time and effort in voter training and civic engagement activities. LWFNC is affiliated with the League of Women Voters of the United States, which was also founded in 1920. IV. FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

The 2011 Legislative Redistricting

43. The 2011 Regular Session of the North Carolina General Assembly convened on January 26, 2011. Under Article II, §§ 3 and 5 of the North Carolina State Constitution, the General Assembly must enact new redistricting plans for the Senate and House districts at its first session convened after the return of the United States Census.

44. Under 2 U.S.C. §§ 2a and 2c, the General Assembly has the authority to revise Congressional districts.

45. On March 2, 2011, the General Assembly received the population data from the 2010 Census, pursuant to P.L. 94-171, from the United States Department of Commerce.

46. On July 27, 2011, the General Assembly passed the State Senate Redistricting Plan, 2011 S.L. 404, known as the “Rucho Senate 2” Plan, and the 2011 Congressional Redistricting Plan, 2011 S.L. 403, “Rucho-Lewis Congress 3.” On July 28, 2011, the General Assembly passed the State House Redistricting Plan, 2011 S.L. 402, the “Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4” Plan.

47. No African-American Representatives or Senators voted for any of the three enacted plans.

48. The North Carolina Attorney General submitted the 2011 House, Senate and Congressional Plans to the United States Department of Justice for preclearance under Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act on September 2, 2011.

49. On September 2, 2011, the North Carolina Attorney General also filed a complaint in the United States Court for the District of Columbia. (North Carolina v. Holder, No. 1:11-CV-01592 (D.D.C.)).

50. On November 1, 2011, the three plans as intended to be adopted by the General Assembly were precleared by the United States Department of Justice.

51. These plans now represent the current electoral districts for the House, Senate, and Congressional elections.

52. The 2011 State House, State Senate, and Congressional Plans unnecessarily and unjustifiably place black voters into districts based solely on their race. In doing so, the General Assembly failed to comply with the traditional redistricting principles enumerated in Stephenson

v. Bartlett. These principles include compactness, contiguity and respect for political subdivisions.

Dismantling Communities of Interest: Split Precincts

53. A precinct is one of the most traditional forms of political subdivisions, reflecting a compact geographic neighborhood.

54. The State House and Senate Plans split an unprecedented number of precincts. The State House Plan split 395 precincts, almost twice as many as any of the alternative Plans submitted to the House Redistricting Committee. The State Senate Plan split 257 precincts, again more than any alternative Plan submitted to the Senate Redistricting Committee.

55. Splitting precincts harms voters by diminishing efficiency and efficacy in both elections and political representation.

56. Splitting precincts divides communities of interest and diminishes the community's ability to effect change through the electoral process.

57. Splitting precincts increases confusion on Election Day and makes it more difficult for voters to know who will be on their ballot when they go to vote. This confusion reduces the ability of voters to participate effectively in the electoral process.

58. Splitting precincts increases the different kinds of ballots used at the polls, increasing the likelihood that a voter will receive the wrong ballot.

59. Splitting precincts creates more administrative paperwork at the polling location, leading to longer lines that discourage voter participation.

60. Splitting precincts also makes it harder for voters to identify their elected representatives. By creating confusion about who represents what part of the neighborhood, these split precincts are stumbling blocks for voters who want to petition their elected representatives and hold them accountable.

61. By admission of North Carolina election officials, splitting precincts increases the risk of voters receiving the wrong ballots, creates suspicion when neighbors are given different ballots, requires additional training and additional paid personnel at the polls, and creates significant risks in staff properly assigning voters to the wrong districts. One official testified in the public record, “the possibility of error when geocoding on a block by block basis at such a large scale is unavoidable.”

62. Splitting so many precincts is unnecessary, as the North Carolina Constitution allows a population deviation of plus or minus 5 percent in compliance with the Equal Protection Clause in the State House and Senate districts. Stephenson v. Bartlett, 355 N.C. 354, 385 (2002).

63. Moreover, these precincts were not split to minimize deviations among districts, as the overall deviation range is nearly 10 percent in the current plans.

64. The General Assembly repeatedly split precincts to place black voters in a different district than the rest of the precinct. 36.34 percent of the black voting age population in North Carolina lives in one of the 563 split precincts.

65. In contrast, 23.24 percent of the non-Hispanic white voting age population in North Carolina lives in one of the 563 split precincts.

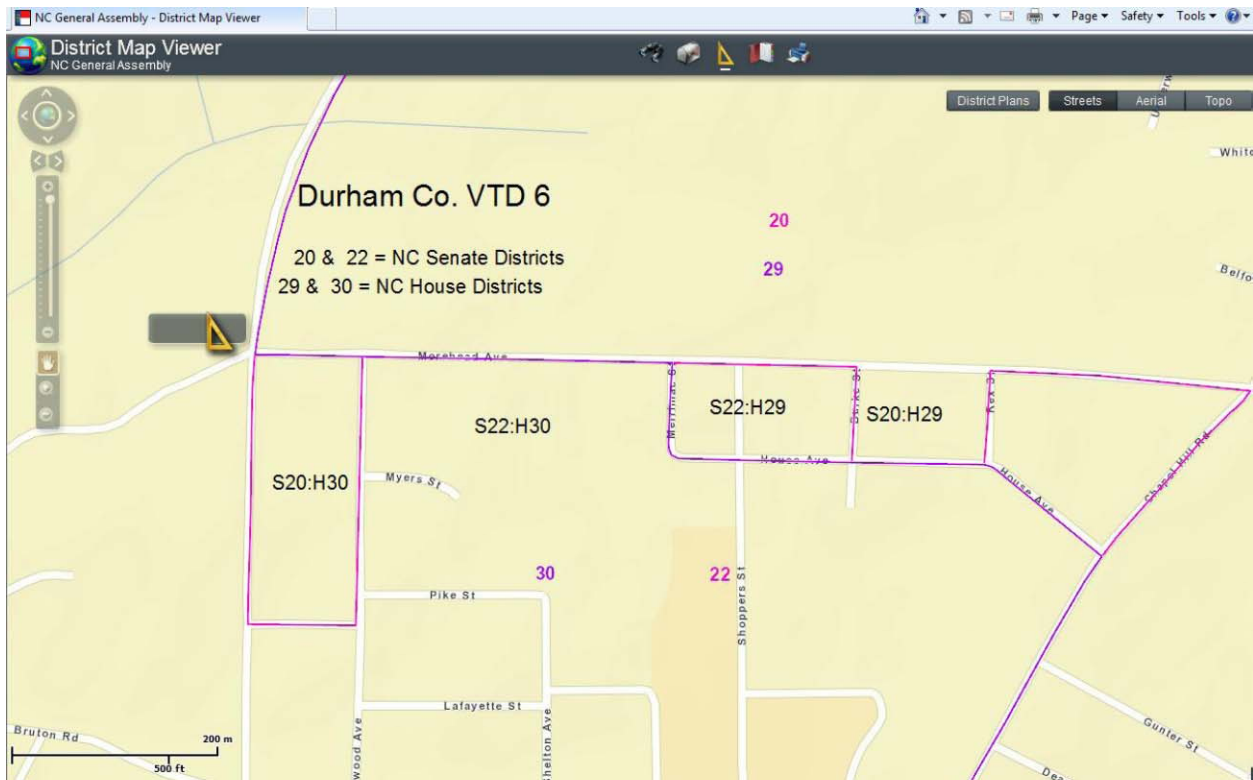

66. Therefore, black voters are 56.37 percent more likely than white voters to live in a split precinct.

67. In 55 percent of the cases where precincts were split, the lines were drawn so that one section has a black voting age population that is at least 20 percentage points greater than in the other section.

68. The General Assembly did not have access to party affiliation data at a sub-precinct level. Race therefore predominated in the decision to split precincts containing African American voters.

69. An example of using black voters as a proxy for political affiliation can be found in Buncombe County. Precinct 100.1 is split between Districts 114 and 115 in Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4. The majority of black voters in Precinct 100.1 belong to the piece inside District 114, which increases the Democratic majority in that district. The majority of white voters in Precinct 100.1 belong to the piece inside District 115, which is drawn as a Republican performing district.

70. Durham County provides an example of problems caused when excessive numbers of precincts are split within a county and across redistricting plans. Durham has 39 split precincts in the House and Senate enacted plans combined, 35 splits in the Senate and 21 split in the House plan. Previously Durham County had only 6 split precincts. Those splits were along major roads, readily identifiable and did not overlap. In contrast, the precinct splits in the enacted plan are complex, involve minor roads and overlap. For example, along just one street in a Durham neighborhood, there will be four different ballot styles in a six block area along one side of Morehead Street in a general election. Following is a map of the area in VTD 6 that is split between Senate Districts 20 and 22, and House Districts 29 and 30.

71. An example of the confusion and difficulties caused by splitting so many precincts is the fact that the General Assembly’s computer system did not assign to any district 420 census blocks in Session law 2011-403 (Rucho-Lewis Congress 3), 5,380 census blocks in Session Law 2011-404 (Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4) and 3,200 census blocks in Session Law 2011-402 (Rucho Senate 2).

State House Redistricting

72. On February 15, 2011, the Speaker of the House Thom Tillis appointed the officers and members of the House Redistricting Committee. Rep. David Lewis was appointed Chair of the Committee. Rep. Nelson Dollar and Rep. Jerry Dockham were appointed co-chairs.

73. The House Redistricting Committee considered a plan named “Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4.”

74. In addition to the plan created by the House Redistricting Committee, two legislators introduced alternative plans: (1) the plan proposed by Democratic Rep. Grier Martin known as “House Fair and Legal;” and (2) the plan presented by Rep. Kelly Alexander of the Legislative Black Caucus (“LBC Plan”). In addition, a plan was developed by a coalition of community-based organizations called AFRAM (Alliance for Fair Redistricting and Minority Voting Rights) and submitted at a June 23, 2011 public hearing, “AFRAM Plan.”

75. All three alternative plans adhered to the traditional redistricting criteria of compactness, contiguity, and preserving communities of interest. The plans also provided appropriate and effective voting districts for minorities in compliance with Section 2 and Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act.

76. The State House Plan currently in effect is known as the “2009 Plan.” The 2009 Plan is an amended version of the Plan ratified in 2003. The 2009 Amendments affected New Hanover and Pender counties, neither of which is covered by Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act. The 2009 Plan was used in the 2009 and 2010 elections. It is the benchmark used for Section 5 analysis.

77. On July 28, 2011, the General Assembly passed the State House Redistricting Plan, 2011 S.L. 402, the “Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4” Plan.

Packed Districts

78. The Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan carved black voters out of recognizable communities and neighborhoods, packing existing minority opportunity districts, and minimizing the influence of black voters in surrounding districts.

79. The Black Voting Age Population, “BVAP,” discussed herein, reflects data collected by the Census Bureau and includes multiracial respondents to the Census that indicate they are any part black or African American.

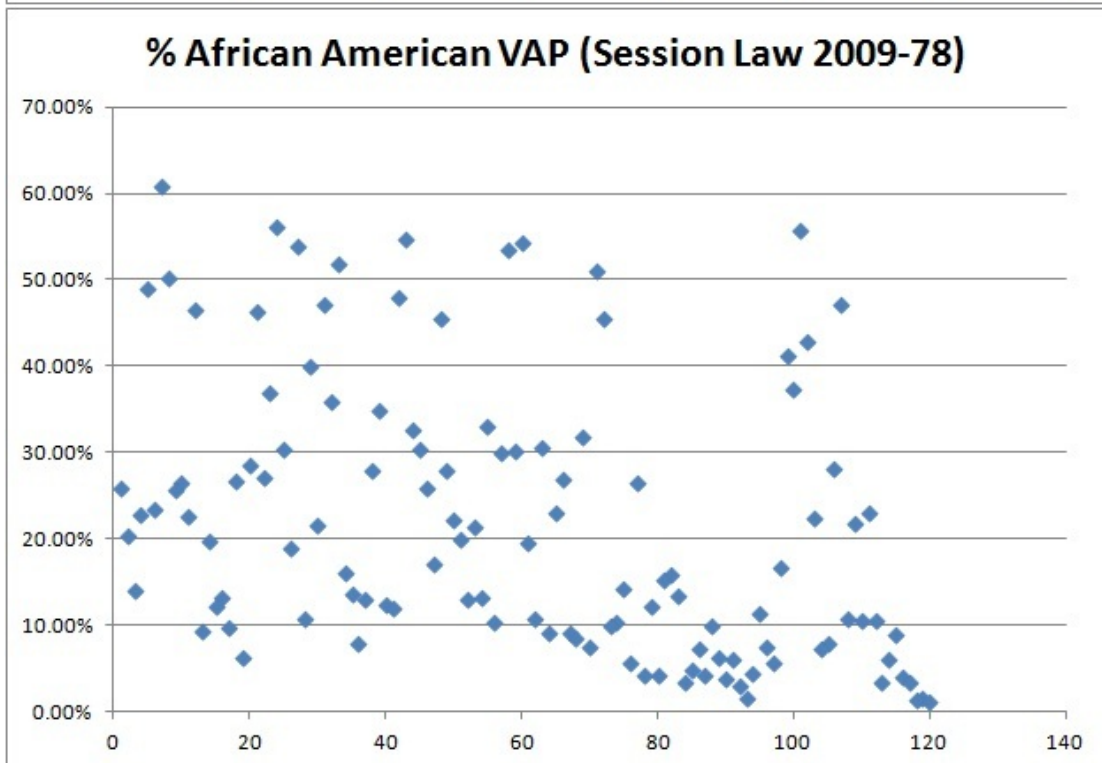

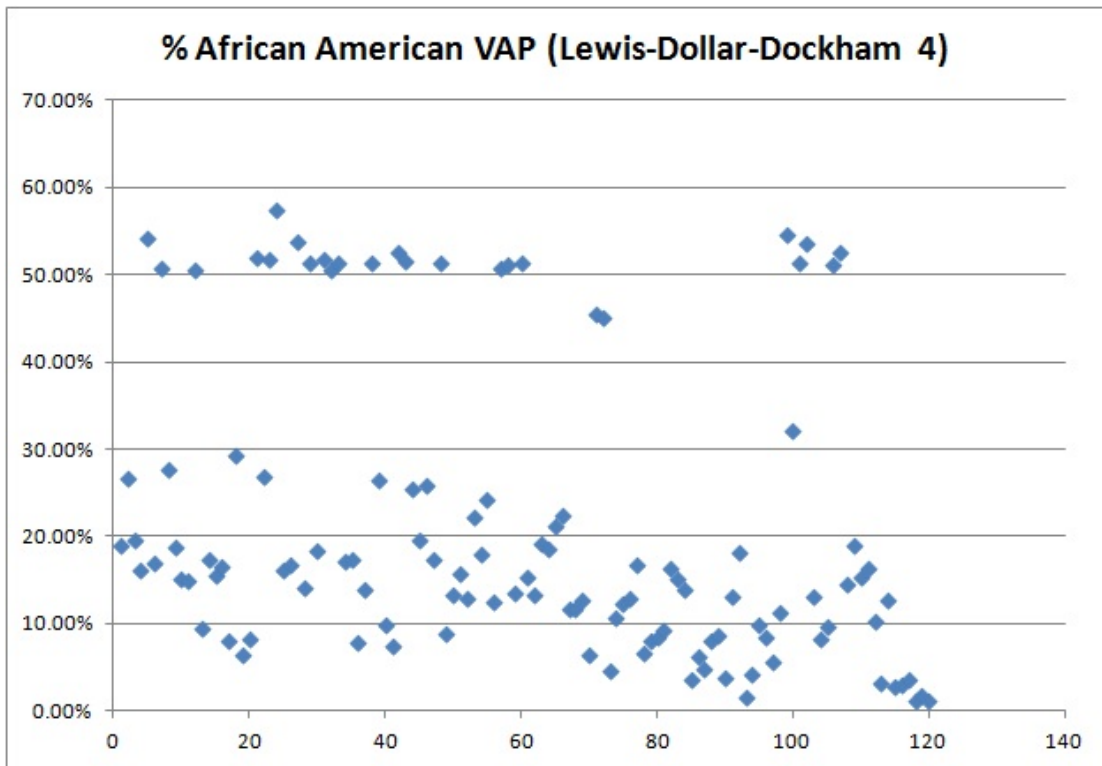

80. In the Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan, 23 of the 120 districts in the State have a BVAP greater than 50 percent. Two districts have a BVAP between 40 percent and 50 percent. In drawing these districts, the plan's drafters intentionally removed black voters to lower the black vote in adjacent districts

81. In comparison, the 2009 House Plan had 10 districts with a BVAP over 50 percent. Eleven districts had BVAP percentages between 39.99 percent and 50 percent.

82. The Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan segregates black voters into districts with greater than 50 percent BVAP or less than 30 percent BVAP. In the Plan, only 3 districts have a BVAP between 30 and 50 percent.

83. In comparison, the 2009 House Plan had 22 of the 120 districts with a BVAP between 30 and 50 percent.

84. The BVAP of the Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan and the 2009 Plan are shown in the chart below where each dot represents one of the 120 districts in the plan. The vertical axis is the percent BVAP of the district and the horizontal axis is the number of the district.

Precinct Divisions

85. The Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan fails to comply with the traditional redistricting principles enumerated in Stephenson v. Bartlett. These principles include compactness, contiguity and respect for political subdivisions.

86. The Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan disregards the importance of maintaining intact precincts, dividing 395 precincts. A voting age population of more than 1,400,000 adults, or nearly twenty percent (20%) of the State's voting age population, resides within these divided precincts. Fifty percent (50%) or more of all the precincts in the county were split in Craven County (23 of 27), Greene County (5 of 10), Lee County (3 of 5), Nash County (15 of 26) and Scotland County (5 of 10). In Mecklenburg County 49 precincts are divided; in Wake County 43 precincts are divided; and in Guilford County 37 precincts are divided. These counties and precincts contain a high percentage of African Americans.

87. The Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan splits more precincts than any alternative plan submitted to the House Redistricting Committee. The enacted plan splits more than three times the number of precincts than the House Fair & Legal Plan, which split only 129 precincts. Additionally the enacted plan split almost twice as many precincts as the House LBC and House AFRAM plans, which split 210 precincts and 202 precincts, respectively.

88. The Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan repeatedly split precincts based on race.

89. The plaintiffs are harmed by this excessive splitting of precincts.

Compactness and Communities of Interest

90. Many of the districts in Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 are drawn without regard for the traditional redistricting principles of compactness and respect for communities of interest.

91. Many of the districts have bizarre and wandering lines that can only be explained by the race-based addition of voters to or exclusion of voters from the district.

92. The Plan's lack of compactness shows its neglect of well-established communities of interest. This neglect weakens voters' ability to effect change as a community through the political process.

93. The alternative plans submitted to the House Redistricting Committee are more compact and preserve more communities of interest than Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4.

94. In 7 out of 7 measures of overall compactness, the Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan rated less compact than the House Fair & Legal, the AFRAM and LBC Plans.

95. The Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan packs black voters into already effective minority districts without justification from the North Carolina Constitution or the federal Voting Rights Act.

96. This racial classification of voters is clearly demonstrated by examining various regions in the Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan.

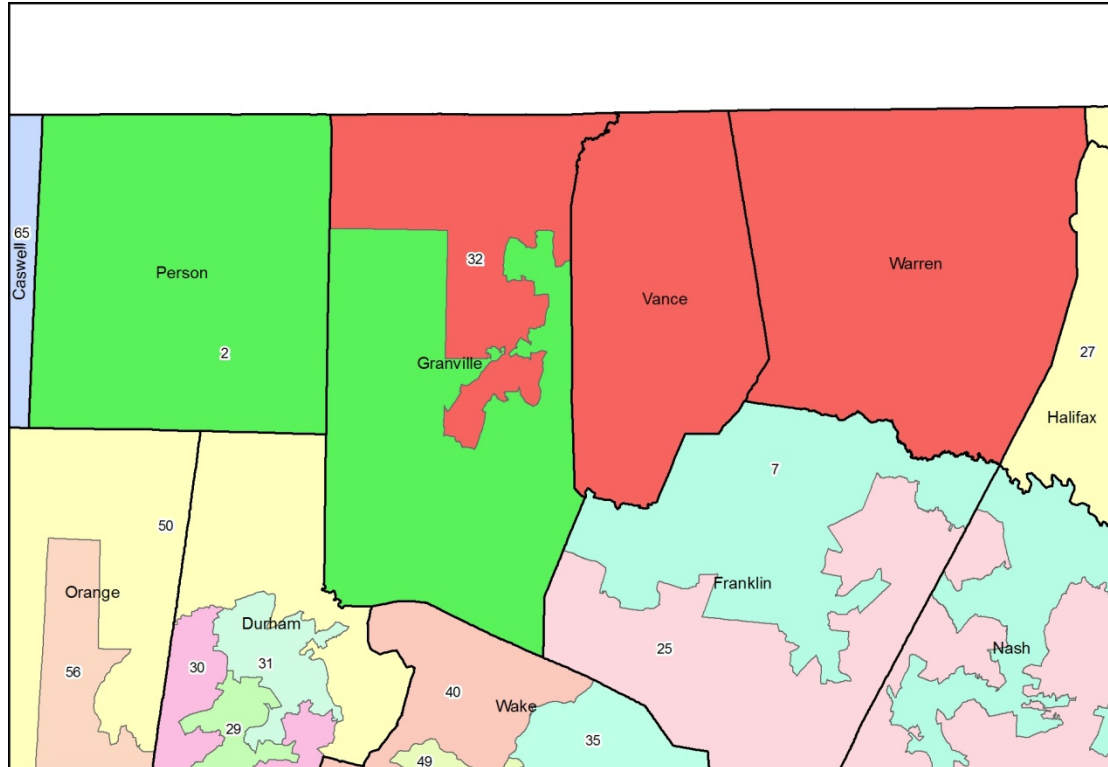

The Person-Warren-Vance-Granville Region

97. Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan draws District 2 and District 32 as a pair of highly irregular, ragged districts to pack as many black voters as possible into District 32. In turn, the voting power of minorities remaining in District 2 is diluted. In creating this pair of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

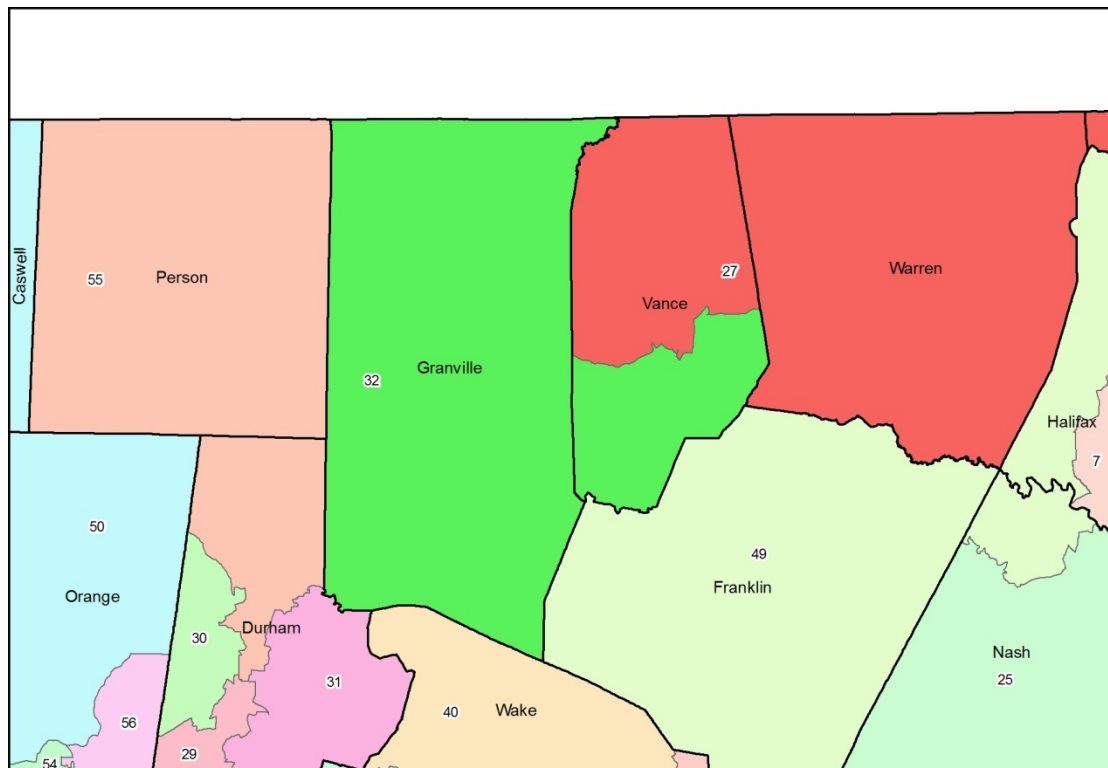

98. District 32 includes Warren and Vance counties in their entirety and then extends a southern tentacle into Granville County.

99. District 2 includes Person County in its entirety, and the remainder of Granville County unclaimed by District 32.

100. Below is a map of Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Districts 2 and 32.

101. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2009 House Plan.

102. District 32 is a new district, drawn to have 50.45 percent BVAP.

103. The drawing of this pair of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in District 32 and decrease the number of black voters in District 2. In turn, the number of white voters in District 2 is increased.

104. The use of race in drawing these districts is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest.

105. The design of these two districts does not respect traditional communities of interest such as precincts. In Districts 2 and 32, 5 precincts were split.

106. The design of these two districts also rejects the traditional redistricting principles of compactness. In measures of compactness, District 32 rated less compact than the equivalent district in the AFRAM plan on 6 out of 7 tests.

107. As a result of the inflated black population of District 32, minorities in the District 2 have less ability to elect the candidate of their choice and less influence in the electoral process.

The Northeastern Corner

108. Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan draws District 5 to pack in as many black voters as possible from District 1. In turn, the voting power of minorities remaining in District 1 is diluted. In creating this pair of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

109. District 5 is subject to Section 5 preclearance. It includes Bertie, Hertford and Gates Counties in their entirety and then extends to grab the middle of Pasquotank County.

110. District 1, a majority white district, includes Currituck, Camden, Perquimans, Chowan and Tyrell Counties in their entirety, and the remainder of Pasquotank County unclaimed by District 5.

111. Below is a map of Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Districts 1 and 5.

112. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2009 House Plan.

113. In House District 5, currently represented by an African American, Rep. Annie Mobley, the current BVAP of 48.87 percent increases to 54.17 percent under the new plan.

114. District 5 was already effectively electing the black candidate of choice and would have complied with the Voting Rights Act if the district had been drawn with a BVAP of approximately 48.87 percent.

115. The drawing of this pair of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in District 5 and decrease the number of black voters in District 1. In turn, the number of white voters in District 1 is increased.

116. The use of race in drawing this district is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest.

117. The design of these two districts does not respect traditional communities of interest. In drawing black voters into District 5, 6 precincts in District 1 and 5 were split.

118. As a result of the inflated black population of District 5, minorities in District 1 have less ability to elect the candidate of their choice and less influence in the electoral process.

The Wilson-Pitt Region

119. Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan draws District 8 and District 24 as a pair of highly irregular, ragged districts to pack as many black voters as possible into District 24. In turn, the voting power of minorities remaining in District 8 is diluted. In creating this pair of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

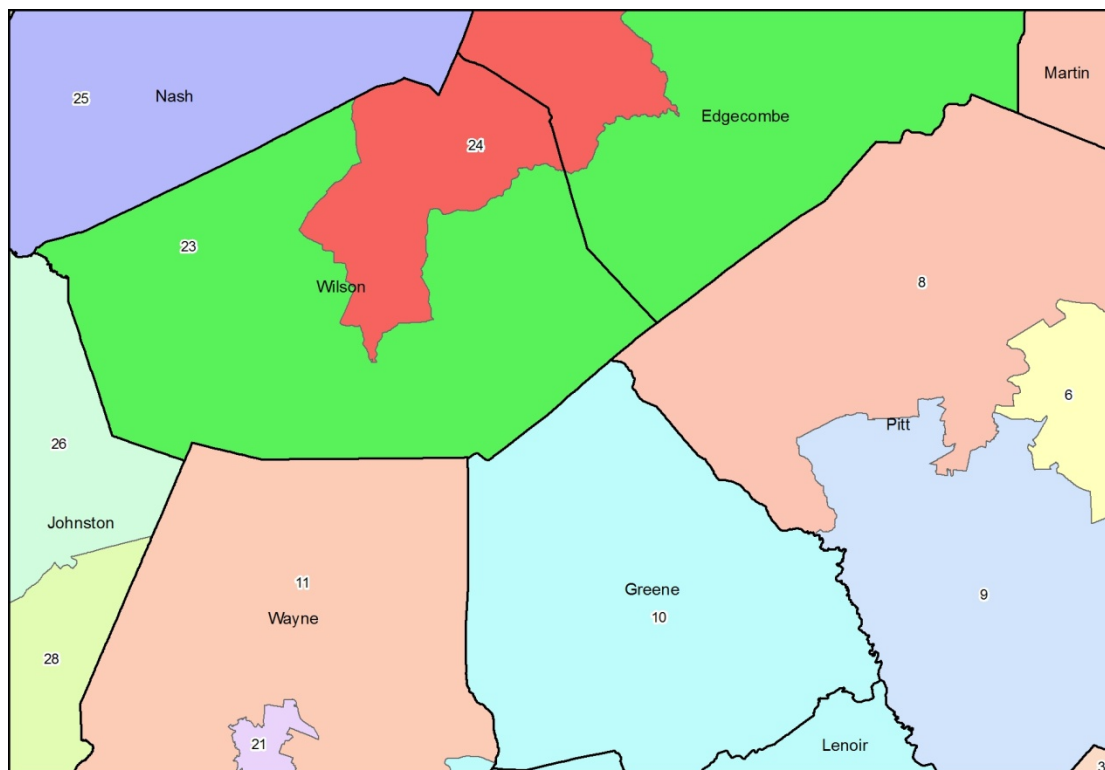

120. District 24 is subject to Section 5 preclearance. It takes a piece of the eastern half of Wilson County and extends west into Pitt County.

121. District 8 includes the remainder of Wilson County unclaimed by District 24 and the southwest corner of Pitt County.

122. Below is a map of Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Districts 8 and 24.

123. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2009 House Plan.

124. In House District 24, represented by an African American, Rep. Jean Farmer-Butterfield, the current BVAP of 50.23 percent increases to 57.33 percent.

125. District 24 was already effectively electing the black candidate of choice and would have complied with the Voting Rights Act if the district had been drawn with a BVAP of approximately 50.23 percent.

126. The drawing of this pair of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in District 24 and decrease the number of black voters in District 8. In turn, the number of white voters in District 8 is increased.

127. The use of race in drawing these districts is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest.

128. The design of these two districts does not respect traditional communities of interest such as precincts. In District 8, 9 precincts were split. In District 24, 12 precincts were split.

129. As a result of the inflated black population of District 24, minorities in District 8 have less ability to elect the candidate of their choice and less influence in the electoral process.

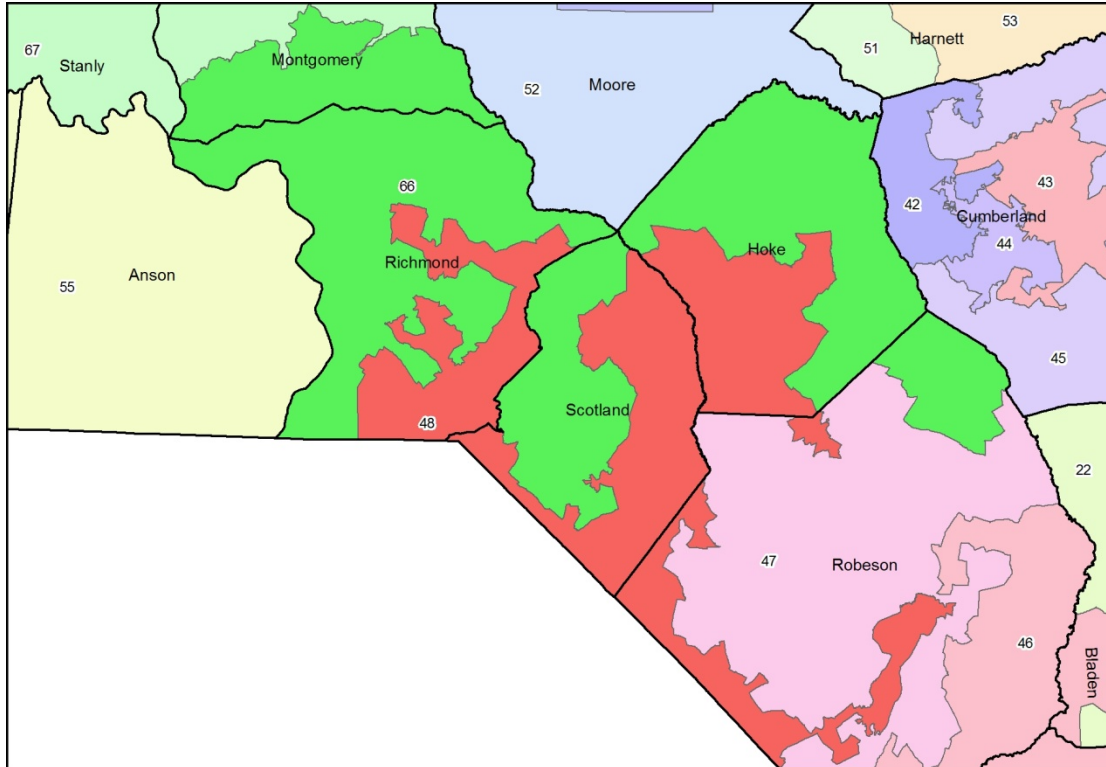

The Scotland-Richmond-Hoke Region

130. Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan draws District 48 and District 66 as a pair of highly irregular, ragged districts to pack as many black voters as possible into District 48. In turn, the voting power of minorities remaining in District 66 is diluted. In creating this pair of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

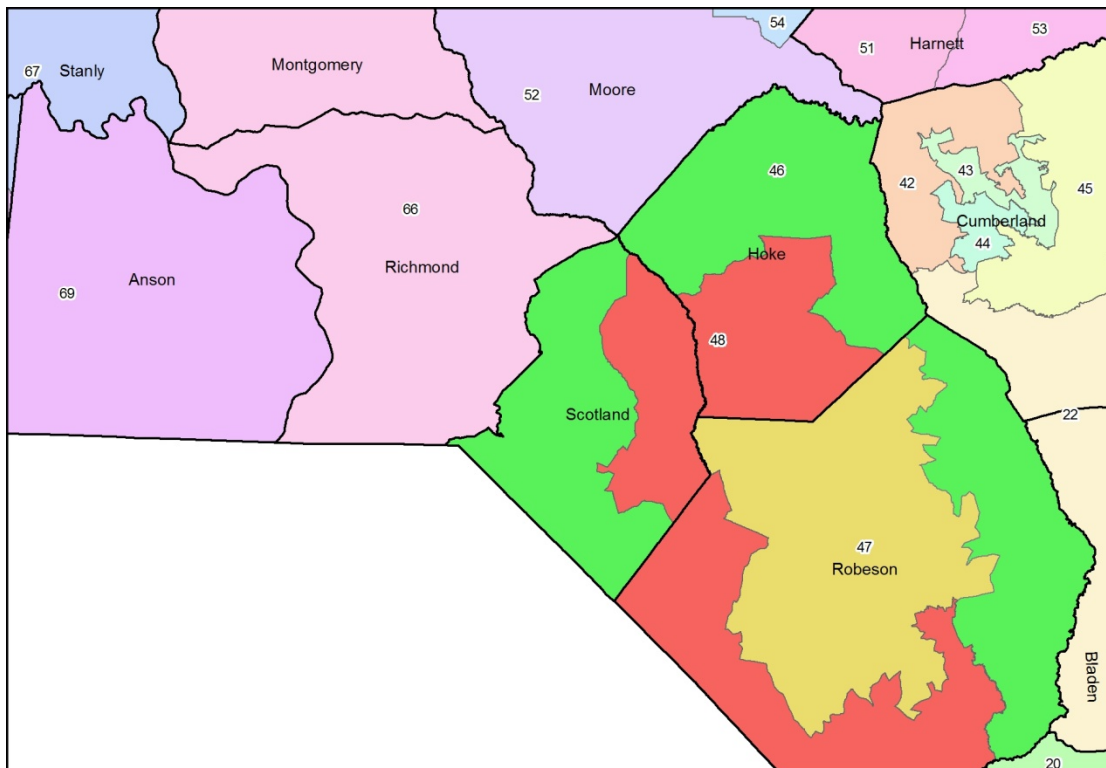

131. District 48 is subject to Section 5 preclearance. It begins in the southern half of Richmond County and spreads east through jagged portions of Scotland and Hoke, before extending an arm into Robeson County.

132. District 66 begins in Montgomery County and fills the remainder of Richmond, Scotland, and Hoke Counties unclaimed by District 48 before ending in north Robeson County.

133. Below is a map of Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Districts 48 and 66.

134. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2009 House Plan.

135. In House District 48 represented by an African American, Rep. Garland Pierce, the current BVAP of 45.56 percent increases to 51.27 percent.

136. District 5 was already effectively electing the black candidate of choice and complied with the Voting Rights Act.

137. The drawing of this pair of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in District 48 and decrease the number of black voters in District 66. In turn, the number of white voters in District 66 is increased.

138. The use of race in drawing these districts is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest.

139. The design of these districts also rejects the traditional redistricting principles of compactness. In measures of compactness, District 48 rated less compact than the equivalent district in the AFRAM plan on 5 out of 7 tests.

140. The design of these two districts does not respect traditional communities of interest, such as precincts.

141. In District 48, 31 precincts were split.

142. In District 66, 24 precincts were split.

143. As a result of the inflated black population of District 48, minorities in the District 66 have less ability to elect the candidate of their choice and less influence in the electoral process.

The Sampson-Duplin-Wayne Region

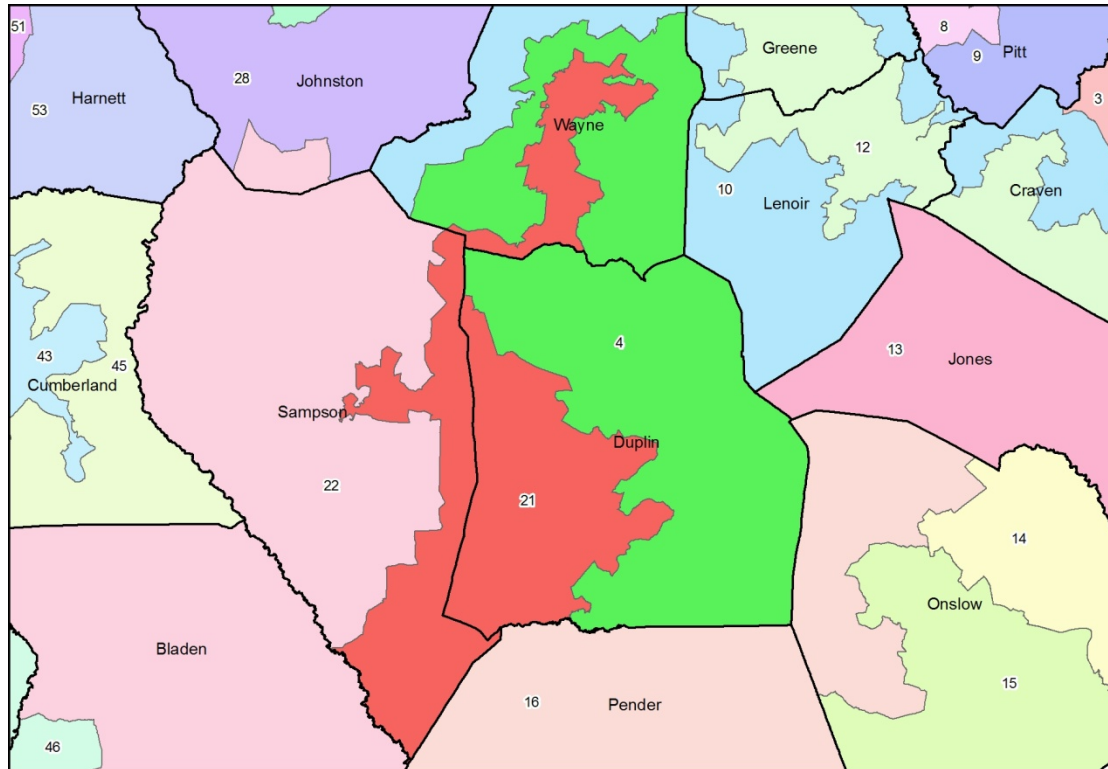

144. The Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan draws District 4 and District 21 as a pair of ragged districts to pack as many black voters as possible into District 21. In turn, the voting power of minorities remaining in District 4 is diluted. In creating this pair of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

145. District 21 is subject to Section 5 preclearance. It begins in the southern half of Sampson County and spreads east through a jagged portion of Duplin County, before extending an arm north into Wayne County.

146. District 4 is comprised of the remainder of Duplin unclaimed by District 21 and reaches north into Wayne County.

147. Below is a map of Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Districts 4 and 21.

148. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2009 House Plan.

149. In House District 21, represented by an African American, Rep. Larry Bell, the current BVAP of 46.25 percent increases to 51.9 percent

150. District 21 was already effectively electing the black candidate of choice and would have complied with the Voting Rights Act if the new BVAP remained around 46 percent.

151. The drawing of this pair of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in District 21 and decrease the number of black voters in District 4. In turn, the number of white voters in District 4 is increased.

152. The use of race in drawing these districts is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest.

153. The design of these districts also rejects the traditional redistricting principles of compactness. In measures of compactness, District 21 rated less compact than the equivalent district in the AFRAM plan on 7 out of 7 tests.

154. The design of these two districts does not respect traditional communities of interest such as precinct. In District 4, 17 precincts were split.

155. In District 21, 25 precincts were split.

156. As a result of the inflated black population of District 21, minorities in the District 4 have less ability to elect the candidate of their choice and less influence in the electoral process.

The Durham Region

157. The Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan draws District 29 and District 30 as a pair of highly irregular, ragged districts to pack as many black voters as possible into District 29. In turn, the voting power of minorities remaining in District 30 is diluted. In creating this pair of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

158. District 29 spreads like an ink blot over the city of Durham, a city with a large black population.

159. District 30 fills the remainder of the southern half of Durham unclaimed by District 29.

160. Below is a map of Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Districts 29 and 30.

161. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2009 House Plan.

162. In House District 29, represented by an African American, Rep. Larry Hall, the current BVAP of 39.99 percent increases to 51.34 percent.

163. District 21 was already effectively electing the black candidate of choice and would have complied with the Voting Rights Act if the new BVAP remained around 46 percent.

164. The drawing of this pair of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in District 29 and decrease the number of black voters in District 30. In turn, the number of white voters in District 30 is increased.

165. The use of race in drawing these districts is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest.

166. The design of these two districts does not respect traditional communities of interest. In District 29, 14 precincts were split.

167. In District 30, 12 precincts were split.

168. A total of 21 of Durham County's 55 precincts are split in drawing Districts 29, 30, and 31.

169. As a result of the inflated black population of District 29, minorities in the District 30 have less ability to elect the candidate of their choice and less influence in the electoral process.

The Wake Region

170. The Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan draws Districts 34, 38 and 49 as a group of ragged, entwined, districts within Wake County to pack as many black voters as possible into District 38. In turn, the voting power of minorities remaining in Districts 34 and 49 is diluted. In creating this group of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

171. District 38 begins in central Wake County and extends over southeast Raleigh, into Garner and north into Knightdale and Wake Forest.

172. District 34 goes west of 38, over Cary and then and curves north around Raleigh to the edge of District 49.

173. District 49 contains central and North Raleigh.

174. Below is a map of Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Districts 34, 38, and 49.

175. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2009 House Plan.

176. District 38 is a new majority-minority district, drawn to have 50.45 percent BVAP.

177. The drawing of this pair of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in District 38 and decrease the number of black voters in Districts 34 and 49. In turn, the number of white voters in Districts 34 and 49 is increased.

178. The use of race in drawing these districts is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest.

179. The design of these districts also rejects the traditional redistricting principles of compactness. In measures of compactness, District 38 rated less compact than the equivalent district in the AFRAM plan on 5 out of 7 tests.

180. The design of these two districts does not respect traditional communities of interest, such as precincts. In District 34, 14 precincts were split.

181. In District 38, 13 precincts were split.

182. In District 49, 3 precincts were split.

183. As a result of the inflated black population of District 38, minorities in the District 34 and 49 have less ability to elect the candidate of their choice and less influence in the electoral process.

The Cumberland Region

184. The Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan draws District 42, 43, and 45 as a group of ragged districts within Cumberland County to pack as many black voters as possible into District 42. In turn, the voting power of minorities remaining in District 45 is diluted. In creating this group of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

185. District 42 is subject to Section 5 preclearance. It hugs the western edge of Cumberland County.

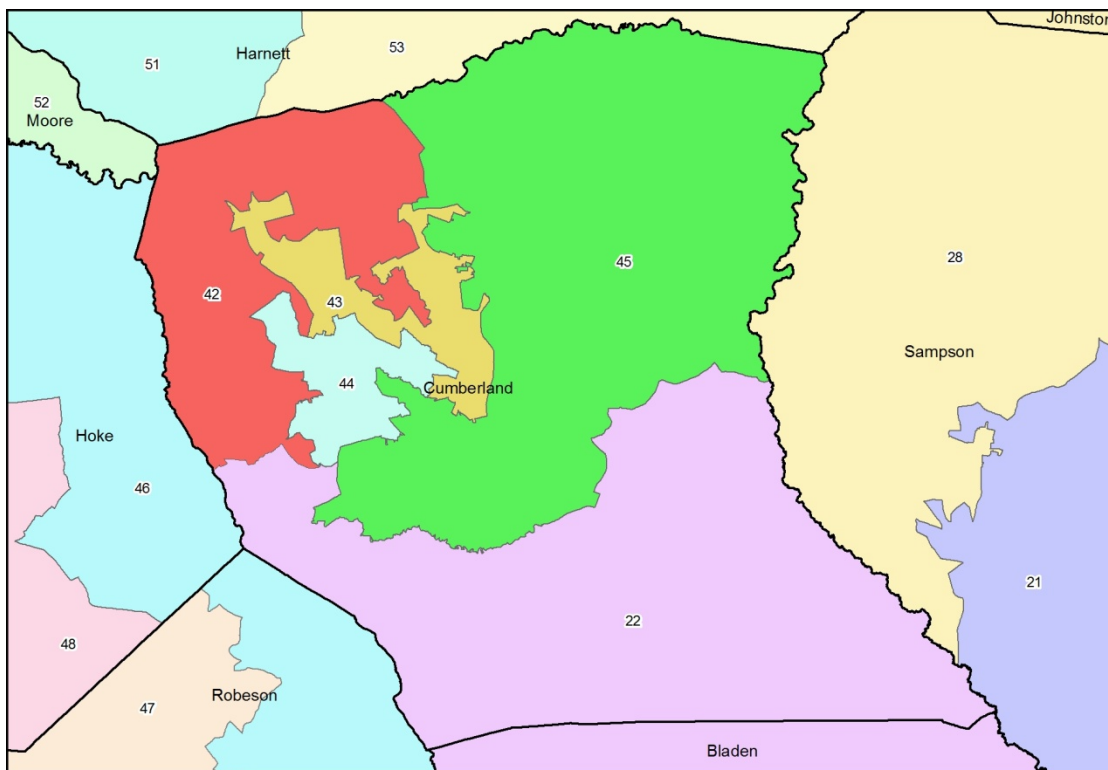

186. District 43 is subject to Section 5 preclearance. It spreads across the heart of Cumberland County, bounded by Districts 42, 44 and 45.

187. District 45 is subject to Section 5 preclearance. It fills the remainder of Cumberland County unclaimed by Districts 42, 43, and 44.

188. Below is a map of Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Districts 42, 43, 44, and 45.

189. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2009 House Plan.

190. In House District 42, represented by an African American, Rep. Marvin Lucas, the current BVAP of 47.94 percent increases to 52.56 percent.

191. District 42 was already effectively electing the black candidate of choice and would comply with the Voting Rights Act if the new BVAP was drawn around 48 percent.

192. District 42 pulls black voters out of District 43. To apparently avoid retrogression under Section 5, District 43 extends a thin tentacle deep into District 45 to gather additional black voters. A more compact, non-retrogressive alternative was available if District 42 had not been unjustifiably packed.

193. The drawing of this pair of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in District 42 and decrease the number of black voters in District 45. In turn, the number of white voters in District 45 is increased.

194. The use of race in drawing these districts is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest.

195. This district pairing does not respect traditional communities of interest, such as precincts. In District 42, 15 districts were split.

196. In District 45, 10 precincts were split.

197. A total of 27 of Cumberland County's 48 precincts are split in drawing Districts 42, 43, 44, and 45.

198. As a result of the inflated black population of District 42, minorities in District 45 have less ability to elect the candidate of their choice and less influence in the electoral process.

The Guilford Region

199. The Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan draws Districts 57 and 59 as a pair of ragged districts to pack as many black voters as possible into District 57. Under the 2009 Plan, black voters in both districts exerted substantial influence. The new Plan packs as many black voters as possible into District 57 to create a new majority-minority district not required by the Voting Rights Act.

200. District 57 is subject to Section 5 preclearance. It begins in central Guilford, over Greensboro and extends a tendril into the eastern part of the county.

201. District 59 covers the majority of eastern Guilford County.

202. Below is a map of Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Districts 57 and 59.

203. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2009 House Plan.

204. District 57 has a BVAP of 50.69 percent.

205. The drawing of this pair of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in District 57 and decrease the number of black voters in District 59. In turn, the number of white voters in District 59 is increased.

206. The use of race in drawing these districts is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest.

207. The design of these districts also rejects the traditional redistricting principles of compactness. In measures of compactness, District 57 rated less compact than the equivalent district in the AFRAM plan on 7 out of 7 tests.

208. The design of these two districts does not respect traditional communities of interest and political subdivisions.

209. In District 59, 11 precincts were split.

210. In District 57, 15 precincts were split.

211. As a result of the inflated black population of District 57, minorities in the District 59 have less ability to elect the candidate of their choice and less influence in the electoral process.

The Mecklenburg Region

212. The Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan creates 5 black majority districts out of the 10 districts in Mecklenburg County.

213. These districts are not required by the Voting Rights Act.

214. In comparison, the AFRAM Plan creates only 2 majority-minority districts, in compliance with the Voting Rights Act.

215. The Plan draws Districts 99 and 103 to pack as many black voters as possible into District 99. In turn, the voting power of minorities remaining in District 103 is diluted. In creating this group of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

216. District 99 begins in the eastern side of Mecklenburg County and is bounded by Districts 106 and 107 in the northwest and District 100 in the southwest. It extends an arm into District 103 in the East.

217. District 103 hugs the eastern border of Mecklenburg County and is bordered by Districts 99, 100, 104, and 105.

218. Below is a map of Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Districts 99, 102, 103, and 106.

219. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2009 House Plan.

220. In House District 99, represented by an African American, Rep. Rodney Moore, the current BVAP of 41.26 percent increases to 54.65 percent BVAP.

221. The drawing of this pair of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in District 99 and decrease the number of black voters in District 103. In turn, the number of white voters in District 103 is increased.

222. The use of race in drawing these districts is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest.

223. The design of these districts also rejects the traditional redistricting principles of compactness.

224. Additionally, Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 draws Districts 102 and 106 to be two additional and unnecessary majority-minority districts in Mecklenburg. District 102, rises from 42.74 percent to 53.53 percent. District 106 is a new district in the county, drawn with a BVAP of 51.12 percent.

225. District 102 and 106 are racial classifications, drawn intentionally to increase the number of black voters in the district and decrease the number of black voters in adjacent districts.

226. These new majority-minority districts are not required for compliance with Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act.

227. To create these additional and unnecessary majority-minority districts, the entirety of Mecklenburg County is drawn with less consideration for compactness and communities of interest.

228. Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4's Mecklenburg area rated less compact than the Mecklenburg area in the AFRAM Plan in 7 out of 7 measures.

229. The creation of unnecessary majority-minority districts leads to less compact adjacent districts. District 92, adjacent to District 102, is less compact than the equivalent district in the AFRAM Plan.

230. District 107, adjacent to Districts 92, 98, 99, 101 and 106 is less compact than the equivalent district in the AFRAM Plan.

231. The design of these districts does not respect traditional communities of interest. In Mecklenburg County, 49 out of the county's 195 precincts were split.

232. In District 99, 7 precincts were split.

233. In District 103, 3 precincts were split.

234. In District 102, 7 precincts were split.

235. In District 106, 3 precincts were split.

236. An egregious example of race-based precinct splits occurred in the Mecklenburg area. Precinct 235 in Mecklenburg County was split into two sub-precincts, which divided between House District 100 and 103. District 100 wrapped around one small predominantly black area, removing it from District 103. Adjacent Precinct 94 was split to pull white voters into 103.

237. As a result of the inflated black population of District 99, 102, and 106, minorities in the District 103 and throughout the Mecklenburg area have less ability to elect the candidate of their choice and less influence in the electoral process.

Chatham-Lee Region

238. The Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan draws District 54 to scoop black voters out of District 51 in Lee County. In turn, the voting power of minorities remaining in District 51 is diluted. In creating this pair of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

239. The Plan draws Districts 54 as containing Chatham County in its entirety then reaches an arm into District 51 in Lee County.

240. Below is a map of Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Districts 51 and 54.

241. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2009 House Plan.

242. The total BVAP of District 54 is 17.98.

243. The BVAP of the Lee County piece of District 54 is 36.5 percent of the population of the Lee County piece.

244. District 54's excursion into Lee County accounts for approximately 40 percent of the entire BVAP of the district.

245. The drawing of this pair of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in District 54 and decrease the number of black voters in District 51. In turn, the number of white voters in District 51 is increased.

246. The use of race in drawing these districts is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest.

The Halifax-Nash-Franklin Region

247. Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan draws District 7 and District 25 as a pair of highly irregular, ragged districts that ignores the historic community of interest that unites Nash and Halifax Counties. In creating this pair of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

248. District 7 winds its way through the northern portions of Franklin and Nash Counties, with arms that reach into the southern half of Nash County. District 25 includes the remainder of Franklin and Nash Counties unclaimed by District 7.

249. Below is a map of Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Districts 7 and 25.

250. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2009 House Plan.

251. The design of these two districts does not respect traditional communities of interest, such as precincts. In Districts 7 and 25, 22 precincts were split.

252. The design of these districts also rejects the traditional redistricting principles of compactness. In measures of compactness, District 7 rated less compact than the equivalent district in the AFRAM plan on 6 out of 7 tests.

State Senate Redistricting

253. On January 27, 2011, the Senate Redistricting Committee was appointed and Senator Bob Rucho was named as Chair of the Committee.

254. The Senate Redistricting Committee considered a plan named “Rucho Senate 2.”

255. In addition to Rucho Senate 2, two legislators introduced alternative plans: (1) the plan presented by Minority Leader, Senator Martin Nesbitt, called “Senate Fair and Legal;” and (2) the plan presented by Senator Floyd McKissick for the Legislative Black Caucus, the “LBC Plan.” In addition, an alternative plan was developed by a coalition of community-based organizations called AFRAM (Alliance for Fair Redistricting and Minority Voting Rights) and submitted at the June 23, 2011 public hearing, “AFRAM map.”

256. All three alternative plans adhered to the traditional redistricting criteria of compactness, contiguity, and preserving communities of interest. The plans also provided appropriate and effective voting districts for minority voters in compliance with Section 2 and Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act.

257. The State Senate plan currently in effect is known as the “2003 Senate Plan.” The 2003 Plan was ratified in 2003, and was used in the 2004 through 2010 elections. It is the benchmark used for Section 5 analysis.

258. On July 27, 2011, the General Assembly passed the State Senate Redistricting Plan, S.L. 404, known as the “Rucho Senate 2” plan.

259. No African-American Senators or Representatives voted for the Rucho Senate 2 Plan.

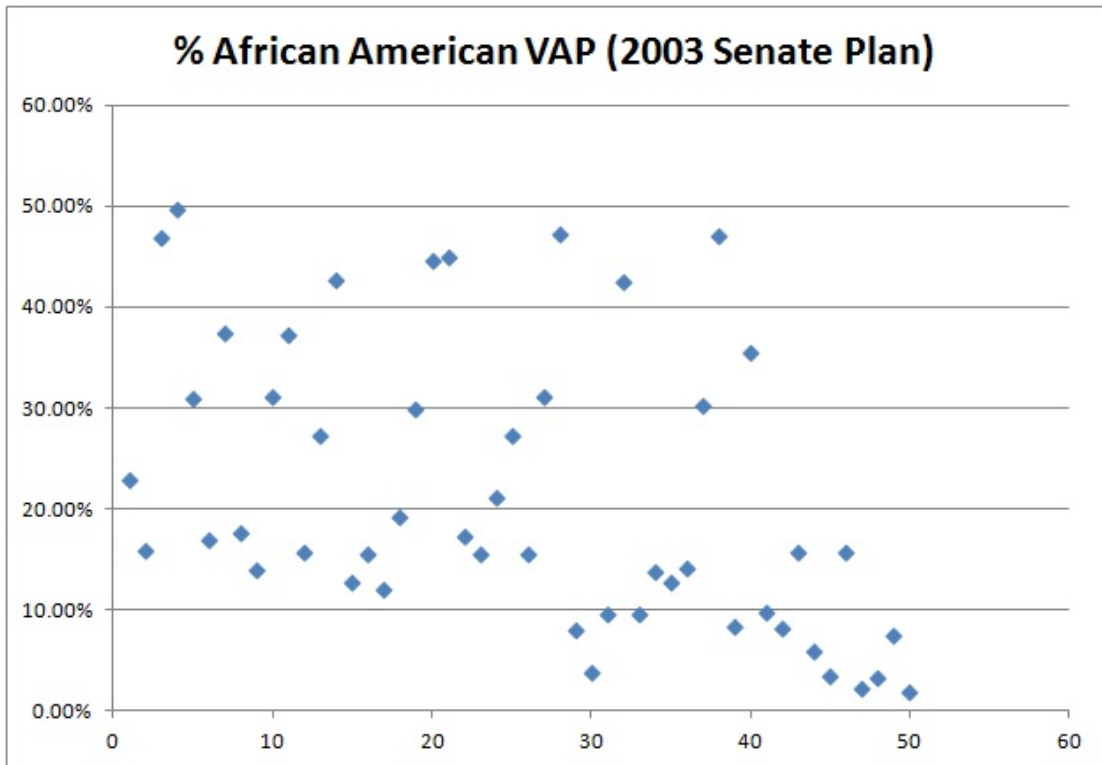

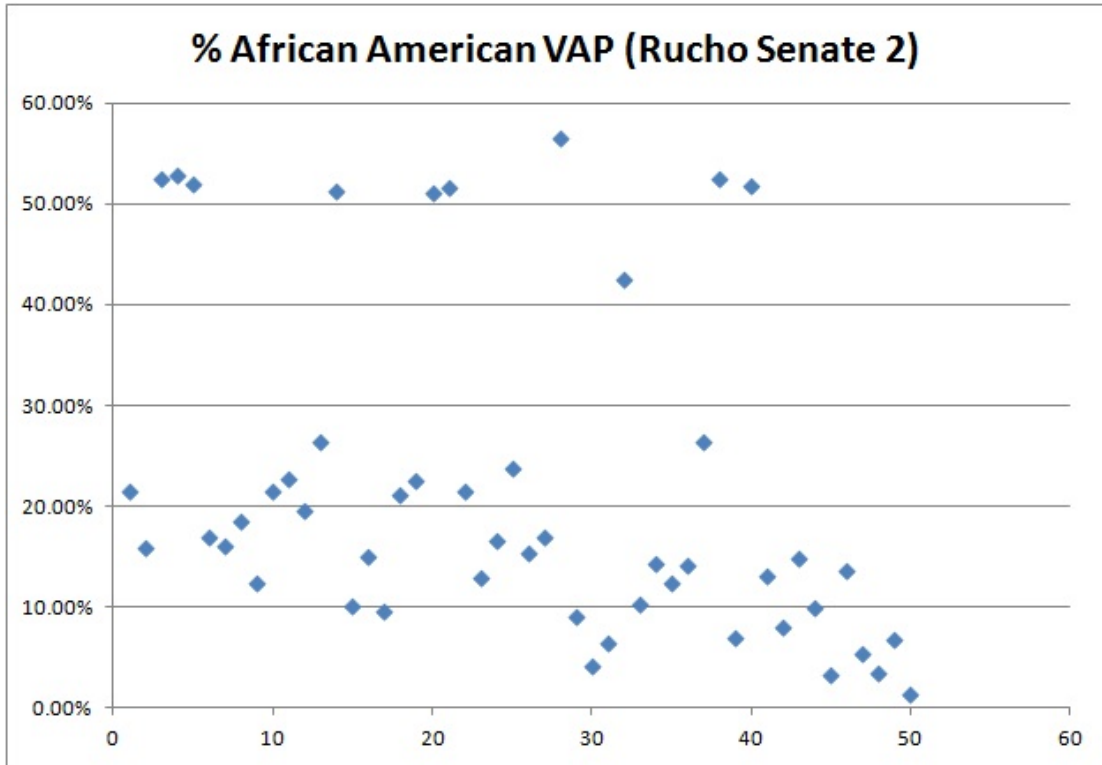

260. In the Rucho Senate 2 Plan, 10 districts have a BVAP greater than 40 percent and 9 of these districts have a BVAP over 50 percent.

261. By comparison, in the 2003 Senate Plan, no district had a BVAP greater than 50 percent. Eight districts had a BVAP greater than 40 percent, ranging from 42.52 percent to 49.7 percent. From these eight districts, seven black Senators were elected.

262. The Rucho Senate 2 Plan segregates many black voters into districts with greater than 50 percent BVAP or less than 30 percent BVAP. In the Plan, only 1 district has a BVAP between 30 and 50 percent.

263. In comparison, the 2003 Plan had 15 districts with a BVAP between 30 and 50 percent.

264. The BVAP of the Rucho Senate 2 Plan and the 2003 Plan are shown below where each dot represents one of the 50 districts in the plan. The vertical axis is the percent BVAP of the district and the horizontal axis is the number of the district.

265. In drawing these districts, the Rucho Senate 2 plan intentionally carved black voters out of existing majority-white districts to increase the BVAP of districts already providing African-American voters an opportunity to elect their candidates of choice and to decrease the number of black voters in the remaining majority white districts. The Rucho Senate 2 Plan divided black voters from their neighborhoods and communities by splitting the precincts in which they vote and packing them in existing, performing minority districts.

266. Rucho Senate 2 divides 257 precincts in 12 counties. A voting age population of approximately 1,000,000 citizens resides within these divided precincts.

267. The Rucho Senate 2 Plan splits more precincts than any alternative plan submitted to the Senate Redistricting Committee. The enacted plan splits 43 times the number of precincts than the Senate Fair & Legal Plan, which split only 6 precincts. Additionally the enacted plan split many more precincts than the Senate LBC and Senate AFRAM plans, which split 5 precincts and 70 precincts, respectively.

268. The Rucho Senate 2 Plan repeatedly split precincts based on race.

269. The plaintiffs are harmed by this excessive splitting of precincts.

270. The Rucho Senate 2 Plan also fails to preserve the traditional redistricting principle of compactness. In measures of compactness, the Rucho Senate 2 Plan rated less compact than the Senate Fair & Legal Plan in 6 out of 7 tests and the AFRAM and LBC Plans in 5 out of 7 tests.

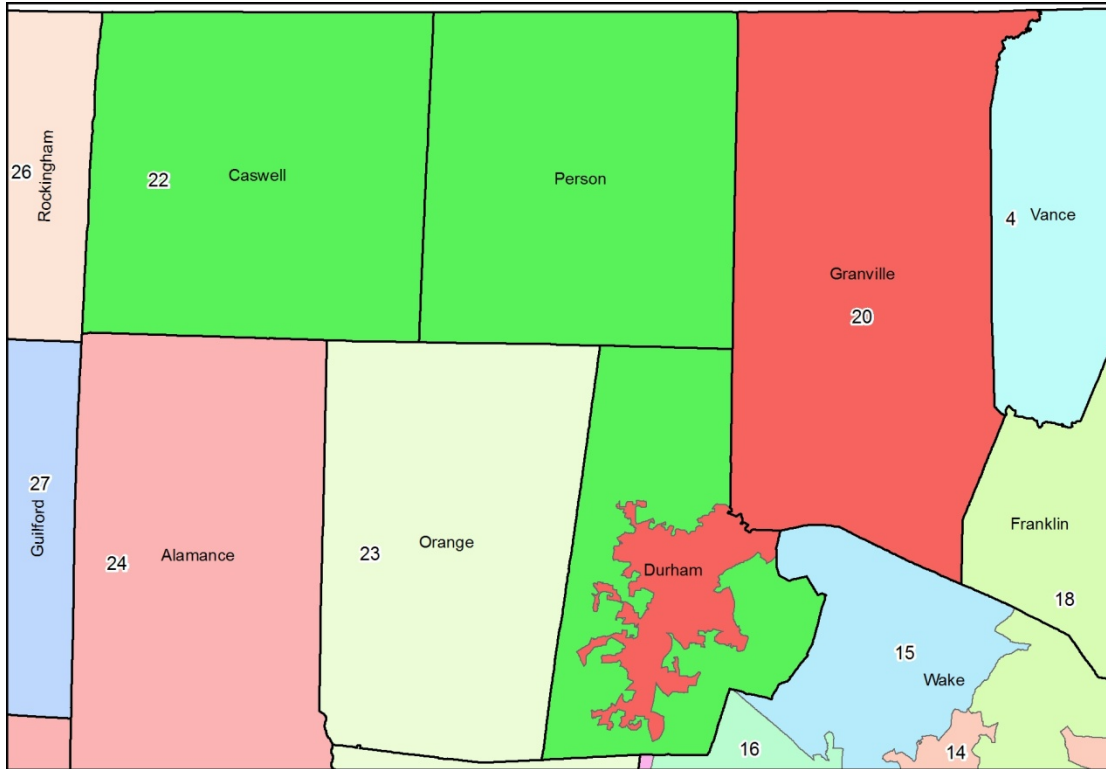

The Durham-Granville Area

271. Rucho Senate 2 draws District 20 and District 22 as a pair of highly irregular, ragged districts to pack as many black voters as possible into District 20. In turn, the voting power of minorities remaining in District 22 is diluted. In creating this pair of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

272. District 20 includes Granville County in its entirety and then extends a southern tentacle into Durham County to reach into Durham, a city with a large black population.

273. District 22 includes Caswell and Person Counties in their entirety, and the remainder of Durham County unclaimed by District 20.

274. Below is a map of Rucho Senate 2 Districts 20 and 22.

275. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2003 Senate Plan.

276. In Senate District 20, represented by an African-American, Sen. Floyd McKissick, the current BVAP of 44.64 percent increases to 51.04 percent under the new plan.

277. District 20 was already effectively electing the black candidate of choice and a majority BVAP district was not needed to comply with Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act.

278. District 20's reach into Durham targets black voters. In the area of District 20 in Durham County, the BVAP is 59.18 percent. In contrast, the BVAP of the rest of Durham County, located in District 22, is only 17.73 percent.

279. The drawing of this pair of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in District 20 and decrease the number of black voters in District 22. In turn, the number of white voters in District 22 is increased.

280. The design of these two districts does not respect traditional communities of interest. In Durham County, the majority of precincts (35 out of 55) were split. Districts 20 and 22 also had 35 split precincts.

281. The design of these districts rejects the traditional redistricting principles of compactness. In measures of compactness, District 20 rated less compact than the equivalent district in the AFRAM plan on 7 out of 7 tests.

282. As a result of the inflated black population of District 20, minorities in the Durham/Granville area risk losing the ability to elect the candidate of their choice.

The Hoke-Cumberland Area

283. The Rucho Senate 2 Plan draws District 19 and District 21 as a pair of convoluted districts to pack as many black voters as possible into District 21. In turn, the voting power of minorities remaining in District 19 is diluted. In creating this pair of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

284. District 21 is subject to Section 5 preclearance. It includes Hoke County in its entirety and then extends east in five separate “fingers” into Cumberland County. These fingers stretch into Fayetteville, a city with a large black population.

285. District 19 contains the portion of Cumberland County unclaimed by District 21.

286. Below is a map of Rucho Senate 2 Districts 19 and 21.

287. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2003 Senate Plan.

288. In Senate District 21, represented by African-American Sen. Eric Mansfield, the current BVAP of 44.93 percent increases to 51.53 percent.

289. District 21 was already effectively electing the black candidate of choice and complied with the Voting Rights Act.

290. The drawing of this pair of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in District 21 and decrease the number of black voters in District 19. In turn, the number of white voters in District 19 is increased.

291. The use of race in drawing these districts is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest.

292. The design of these two districts does not respect traditional communities of interest. Within Districts 19 and 21, 33 precincts were split in each district. More than one-half the precincts are divided by Senate districts in Cumberland County (33 of 48)

293. The design of these districts also rejects the traditional redistricting principles of compactness. In measures of compactness, District 21 rated less compact than the equivalent district in the AFRAM plan on 7 out of 7 tests.

294. As a result of the inflated black population of District 21, minorities in District 19 have less ability to elect the candidate of their choice and less influence in the electoral process.

The Guilford Area

295. The Rucho Senate 2 Plan draws District 27 and District 28 as a pair of convoluted, interlocked districts to pack as many black voters as possible into District 28. In turn, the voting power of minorities remaining in District 27 is diluted. In creating this pair of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

296. District 28 is subject to Section 5. It is entirely included in Guilford County.

297. Below is a map of Rucho Senate 2 Districts 27 and 28.

298. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2003 Senate Plan.

299. In Senate District 28, represented by an African American, Sen. Gladys Robinson, the current BVAP of 47.20 percent increases to 56.49 percent.

300. District 28 was already effectively electing the black candidate of choice and complied with the Voting Rights Act.

301. This district is a racial classification, drawn intentionally to increase the number of black voters in the district.

302. The use of race in drawing this district is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest.

303. The design of these two districts does not respect traditional communities of interest. In Guilford, 16 precincts were split by Senate districts.

304. In District 28, 15 precincts were split.

305. In District 27, 14 precincts were split.

306. The design of these districts also rejects the traditional redistricting principles of compactness. In measures of compactness, District 28 rated less compact than the equivalent district in the AFRAM plan on 4 out of 7 tests.

307. As a result of the inflated black population of District 28, minorities in District 27 have less ability to elect the candidate of their choice and less influence in the electoral process.

The Forsyth Area

308. The Rucho Senate 2 Plan draws District 31 and District 32 as a pair of highly irregular, unwieldy districts. In creating this pair of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

309. District 32 spreads from the center of Forsyth County, sprouting tentacles in each direction.

310. District 31 is the adjacent district, retaining the rest of Forsyth and containing Yadkin County in its entirety.

311. Below is a map of Rucho Senate 2 Districts 31 and 32.

312. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2003 Senate Plan.

313. District 32 is drawn to be 42.53 percent black.

314. District 31 pairs two incumbents, Republican Senator Peter Brunstetter and Democratic Senator Linda Garrou. It has a BVAP of 6.42 percent

315. Districts 31 and 32 do not respect traditional communities of interest. In Forsyth County, 43 of 101 precincts are divided.

316. The design of these districts also rejects the traditional redistricting principles of compactness. In measures of compactness, District 32 rated less compact than the equivalent district in the AFRAM plan on 6 out of 7 tests.

The Greene-Wayne-Lenoir-Pitt Area

317. The Rucho Senate 2 Plan draws District 5 and District 7 across four counties to create a majority-black District 5. In turn, the voting power of minorities remaining in District 7 is diluted. In creating this pair of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

318. District 5 is subject to Section 5 preclearance. It includes Greene County in its entirety and then extends a southward tendril into Wayne and Lenoir Counties. Finally it extends northeast into Pitt County.

319. District 7 is the adjacent district, retaining the rest of Wayne, Lenoir and Pitt Counties.

320. Below is a map of Rucho Senate 2 Districts 5 and 7.

321. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2003 Senate Plan.

322. District 5 is a new district in the region, drawn to be a majority-minority district with a BVAP of 51.97 percent.

323. The drawing of this pair of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in District 5 and decrease the number of black voters in District 7. In turn, the number of white voters in District 7 is increased.

324. The use of race in drawing these districts is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest.

325. The design of these two districts does not respect traditional communities of interest. In Districts 5 and 7, 40 precincts were split in each district.

326. The design of these districts also rejects the traditional redistricting principles of compactness. In measures of compactness, District 5 rated less compact than the equivalent district in the AFRAM plan on 7 out of 7 tests.

327. As a result of the inflated black population of District 5, minorities in District 7 have less ability to elect the candidate of their choice and less influence in the electoral process.

Wake County

328. The Rucho Senate 2 Plan draws District 14 and District 18 as a pair of convoluted districts within Wake and Franklin Counties to pack as many black voters as possible into District 14. In turn, the voting power of minorities remaining in District 18 is diluted. In creating this pair of districts, the Plan neglects the core redistricting principles of compactness and preserving communities of interest.

329. District 14 is entirely included in Wake County.

330. District 18 includes Franklin County in its entirety and parts of Wake County.

331. Below is a map of Rucho Senate 2 Districts 14 and 18.

332. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2003 Senate Plan.

333. In Senate District 14, represented by an African American, Sen. Dan Blue, the current BVAP of 42.62 percent increases to 51.28 percent.

334. District 14 was already effectively electing the black candidate of choice and complied with Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act.

335. The drawing of this pair of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in District 14 and decrease the number of black voters in District 18. In turn, the number of white voters in District 18 is increased.

336. The use of race in drawing these districts is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest. The design of these two districts does not respect traditional communities of interest.

337. In District 14, 29 precincts were split. In District 18, 22 precincts were split

338. The design of these districts also rejects the traditional redistricting principles of compactness. In measures of compactness, District 14 rated less compact than the equivalent district in the AFRAM plan on 6 out of 7 tests.

339. As a result of the inflated black population of District 14, minorities in the Wake County area of District 18 have less ability to elect the candidate of their choice and less influence in the electoral process.

The Mecklenburg Region

340. District 41 is a highly irregular shaped district, beginning in the north of Mecklenburg County. From there it tapers into a thin line hugging the western border of Mecklenburg, growing wide again in the southeast portion of the county.

341. Districts 38 and 40 border District 41 on the south.

342. Below is a map of Rucho Senate 2 Districts 38, 40, and 41.

343. Below is a map of the equivalent area under the 2003 Senate Plan.

344. District 41's strange shape is based on the exclusion of black voters from the District. Rucho Senate 2 draws District 41 with a remarkably low BVAP of 13.15 percent, down from 22.31 in the prior plan.

345. This BVAP is at least 7.5 percent lower than any of the alternative plans. The black voters excluded from District 41 are pushed into Districts 38 and 40.

346. The BVAP in District 38 rose from a BVAP of 46.97 to a new BVAP of 52.51 percent.

347. The BVAP of District 40 rose from 35.43 percent to 51.84 percent.

348. The drawing of this group of districts in this manner is a racial classification, designed to increase the number of black voters in Districts 38 and 40 and decrease the number of black voters in District 41. In turn, the number of white voters in District 41 is increased.

349. The use of race in drawing these districts is not narrowly tailored to meet a compelling governmental interest.

350. The design of these three districts does not respect traditional communities of interest.

351. In District 41, 16 precincts were split.

352. In District 38, 8 precincts were split.

353. In District 40, 16 precincts were split.

354. As a result of the deflated minority population in District 41, minorities in the district and greater Mecklenburg area have less ability to elect the candidate of their choice and less influence in the electoral process.

Congressional Redistricting

355. The Congressional Plan currently in effect is known as the “2001 Plan.” The 2001 Plan was ratified in 2001, and was used in the 2002 through 2010 elections.

356. Sen. Rucho, Chair of the Senate Redistricting Committee, and Sen. Lewis, Chair of the House Redistricting introduced the 2011 Congressional Plan.

357. In addition to the 2011 Congressional Plan, two legislators introduced alternative plans: 1) the plan presented by Senator Josh Stein, called “Congressional Fair and Legal;” and (2) the plan presented by Senator Dan Blue, called “Fourth, Fair, Legal, Compact” Plan. In addition, a plan was developed by a coalition of community-based organizations called AFRAM (Alliance for Fair Redistricting and Minority Voting Rights), and submitted at the May 9, 2011 public hearing, “AFRAM Plan.”

358. All three alternative plans adhered to the traditional redistricting criteria of compactness, contiguity, and preserving communities of interest. The maps also provided appropriate and effective voting districts for minority voters in compliance with Section 2 and Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act.

359. The 2011 Congressional Redistricting Plan, 2011 S.L. 403, was enacted on July 27, 2011.

360. On 7 out of 7 measures for compactness, the enacted plan scored less compact on average than the AFRAM Plan.

District 1

361. Race was the predominant factor in drawing District 1.

362. Under the benchmark plan, the BVAP of District 1 was 47.76 percent. In comparison, District 1 has a new BVAP of 52.65 percent, showing that the district was drawn to increase the percentage of black voters in the 2011 Plan.

363. As race was the predominant factor in drawing District 1, the district is a racial classification subject to strict scrutiny.

364. In District 1, 35 precincts were split.

365. District 1 fails to be narrowly tailored to serve a compelling state interest. The majority-minority district created by the plan is not required by the North Carolina State Constitution or by any federal statute, including the Voting Rights Act.

District 12

366. Race was the predominant factor in drawing District 12.

367. District 12 has a new BVAP of 50.66 percent, showing that the district was drawn to increase the percentage of black voters in the 2011 Plan.

368. As race was the predominant factor in drawing District 12, the district is a racial classification subject to strict scrutiny.

369. District 12 fails to be narrowly tailored to serve a compelling state interest. The majority-minority district created by the plan is not required by the North Carolina State Constitution or by any federal statute, including the Voting Rights Act.

District 4

370. The 2011 Congressional Plan draws District 4 to incorporated narrow segments of 7 counties: Alamance, Orange, Chatham, Durham, Wake, Harnett, and Cumberland into the District.

371. This assortment of county pieces fails to reflect existing and historic communities of interest.

372. District 4 reflects excessive partisanship that violates the North Carolina Constitution's "for the good of the whole" clause in Article I, § 2.

373. In District 4, 14 precincts were split.

374. In measures of compactness, District 4 scored less compact than the AFRAM Plan in 7 out of 7 measures.

District 10

375. The 2011 Congressional Plan irrationally excludes Asheville from the Mountain Region represented by District 11 and instead places it in District 10.

376. The Mountain Region of North Carolina is a vital community of interest with its own unique culture and economy.

377. Asheville has long been recognized as the urban center of the Mountain Region and an important part of its economic and political climate.

378. Never in the history of the State has a redistricting plan separated Asheville from the mountains.

379. In separating Asheville from the Mountain Region, the 2011 Congressional Plan places the city with communities in the Piedmont Region, such as Gastonia. These Piedmont communities have far less in common with Asheville than the communities of the Mountain Region.

380. District 10 reflects excessive partisanship that violates the North Carolina Constitution's "for the good of the whole" clause. Article I, § 2.

PLAINTIFFS' FIRST CLAIM FOR RELIEF

(Violation of the Equal Protection Clause, Article I, § 19 of the State Constitution, State House Redistricting Legislation, S.L. 402)

381. Plaintiffs rely herein upon all of the paragraphs of this Complaint.

382. Under the Equal Protection Clause of the North Carolina State Constitution, no person shall "be denied the equal protection of the laws; nor ... be subjected to discrimination by the State because of race, color, religion, or national origin." N.C. Const. Art. I, § 19.

383. Art. I, § 19 requires the court to apply strict scrutiny of classifications based on race. To survive strict scrutiny, the State must demonstrate that the classification is narrowly tailored to advance a compelling state interest.

384. The Defendants' practice of dividing precincts based on race violates Article 1, § 19 of the North Carolina State Constitution which prohibits racial discrimination and guarantees equal protection of the laws.

385. A legislative district that amounts to a racial classification "reinforces racial stereotypes and threatens to undermine our system of representative democracy by signaling to elected officials that they represent a particular racial group rather than their constituency as a whole." Shaw v. Reno, 509 U.S. 630, 650 (U.S. 1993).

386. The Redistricting Committee Chairs admit moving black voters from one district to another based intentionally on the voters' race, thereby creating racial classifications.

387. House Districts 5, 21, 24, 29, 32, 38, 42, 48, 54, 57, 99, 102 and 106 are racial classifications designed to inflate the black voting age population of each district and decrease the black voting age population of adjacent districts.

388. House Districts 1,2, 4, 8, 30, 34, 45, 49, 51, 59, 66, and 103 are racial classifications designed to decrease the black voting age population of each district and increase the white voting age population.

389. The 2011 House Plan fails to meet the requirements of strict scrutiny. It is not narrowly tailored to advance a compelling state interest. The majority-minority districts created by the plan are not required by the North Carolina State Constitution or by the federal Voting Rights Act or any other federal statute.

390. The excessive number of split precincts in the enacted plan creates two large and unequal classes of citizens and voters: (1) a class of individuals who live in divided precincts – and in counties with many divided precincts – who will experience voter-education gaps, elevated risks of election administration problems, and other harms described herein; and (2) a class of individuals living in whole precincts and counties with only whole precincts, who will experience “business as usual” in the election process. Individuals in the first class are also disproportionately African-American voters.

391. The enacted House Districts listed in paragraphs 387 and 388 above are not sufficiently compact to meet the equal protection clause’s requirement of consistently recognizing local governmental subdivisions and geographical-based communities of interest, and they create a crazy quilt of districts unrelated to a legitimate governmental interest.

392. The individual and organizational plaintiffs suffer representational harms, impediments to their missions, activities and interests, a diminution in their ability to participate equally in the political process and inherent harm to their dignity by the racial discrimination and denial of equal protection described herein.

PLAINTIFFS’ SECOND CLAIM FOR RELIEF
(Violation of Article I, § 19 of the State Constitution,
State Senate Redistricting Legislation, S.L. 404)

393. Plaintiffs rely herein upon all of the paragraphs of this Complaint.

394. Under the Equal Protection Clause of the North Carolina State Constitution, no person shall “be denied the equal protection of the laws; nor ... be subjected to discrimination by the State because of race, color, religion, or national origin.” N.C. Const. Art. I § 19.

395. Art. I, § 19 requires the court to apply strict scrutiny of classifications based on a race. To survive strict scrutiny, the State must demonstrate that the classification is narrowly tailored to advance a compelling state interest.

396. The Defendants' practice of dividing precincts based on race violates Article 1, § 19 of the North Carolina State Constitution which prohibits racial discrimination and guarantees equal protection of the laws.

397. A legislative district that amounts to a racial classification "reinforces racial stereotypes and threatens to undermine our system of representative democracy by signaling to elected officials that they represent a particular racial group rather than their constituency as a whole." Shaw v. Reno, 509 U.S. 630, 650 (U.S. 1993).

398. The Redistricting Committee Chairs admit moving black voters from one district to another based on the voters' race, thereby creating racial classifications.

399. Senate Districts 5, 14, 20, 21, 28, 32, 38 and 40 are racial classifications designed to inflate the black voting age population of each district and decrease the black voting age population of adjacent districts.

400. Senate Districts 7, 18, 19, 22, 27, 31, and 41 are racial classifications designed to decrease the black voting age population of each district and increase the white voting age population.

401. The 2011 Senate Plan fails to meet the requirements of strict scrutiny. It is not narrowly tailored to advance a compelling state interest. The majority-minority districts created by the plan are not required by the North Carolina State Constitution or by the federal Voting Rights Act or any other federal statute.

402. As a result of this racial gerrymander, the 2011 Senate Plan fails to comply with the traditional redistricting principles in Stephenson v. Bartlett, 355 NC 357 (2002). Following Stephenson, the legislature must strive for compactness, contiguity, and respect for political subdivisions. Id.

403. The excessive number of split precincts in the enacted plan creates two large and unequal classes of citizens and voters: (1) a class of individuals who live in divided precincts – and in counties with many divided precincts – who will experience voter-education gaps, elevated risks of election administration problems, and other harms described herein; and (2) a class of individuals living in whole precincts and counties with only whole precincts, who will experience “business as usual” in the election process. Individuals in the first class are also disproportionately African-American voters.

404. The enacted Senate Districts listed in paragraphs 399 and 400 above are not sufficiently compact to meet the equal protection clause’s requirement of consistently recognizing local governmental subdivisions and geographical-based communities of interest, and they create a crazy quilt of districts unrelated to a legitimate governmental interest.

405. The individual and organizational plaintiffs suffer representational harms, impediments to their missions, activities and interests, a diminution in their ability to participate equally in the political process and inherent harm to their dignity by the racial discrimination and denial of equal protection described herein.

(Violation of Article I, § 19 of the State Constitution, Congressional Redistricting Legislation, S.L. 403)

406. Plaintiffs rely herein upon all of the paragraphs of this Complaint.

408. Art. I, § 19 requires the court to apply strict scrutiny of classifications based on a race. To survive strict scrutiny, the State must demonstrate that the classification is narrowly tailored to advance a compelling state interest.

409. A legislative district that amounts to a racial classification “reinforces racial stereotypes and threatens to undermine our system of representative democracy by signaling to elected officials that they represent a particular racial group rather than their constituency as a whole.” Shaw v. Reno, 509 U.S. 630, 650 (U.S. 1993).

410. The Redistricting Committee Chairs admit moving black voters from one district to another based on the voters’ race, thereby creating racial classifications.

411. The 2011 Congressional Plan fails to meet the requirements of strict scrutiny. It is not narrowly tailored to advance a compelling state interest. The racially-based Districts 1 and 12 created by the plan are not required by the North Carolina State Constitution or by any federal statute, including the Voting Rights Act.

412. Districts 4 and 10 in the 2011 Congressional Plan are not sufficiently compact to meet the equal protection clause’s requirement of consistently recognizing local governmental subdivisions and geographical-based communities of interest, and they create a crazy quilt of districts unrelated to a legitimate governmental interest.

413. The individual and organizational plaintiffs suffer representational harms, impediments to their missions, activities and interests, a diminution in their ability to participate equally in the political process and inherent harm to their dignity by the racial discrimination and denial of equal protection described herein.

421. The Lewis-Dollar-Dockham 4 Plan fails to comply with the traditional redistricting principles required by Stephenson v. Bartlett, 355 NC 357 (2002).

PLAINTIFFS’ SEVENTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF
(Violation of Article I, § 2 of the State Constitution, Senate Plan)

PLAINTIFFS’ NINTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF
(Violation of the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment of the U.S.
Constitution, House Plan)

436. The 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution forbids racial classifications unless narrowly tailored to serve a compelling interest.

437. The Defendants’ practice of dividing precincts based on race violates the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution which prohibits racial discrimination and guarantees equal protection of the laws.

438. House Districts 5, 21, 24, 29, 32, 38, 42, 48, 54, 57, 99, 102 and 106 are racial classifications designed to create majority-black districts despite no requirement by the Voting Rights Act to do so.

439. House Districts 1,2, 4, 8, 30, 34, 45, 49, 51, 59, 66, and 103 are racial classifications designed to decrease the black voting age population of each district and increase the white voting age population.

444. The 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution forbids racial classifications unless narrowly tailored to serve a compelling interest.

445. The Defendants' practice of dividing precincts based on race violates the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution which prohibits racial discrimination and guarantees equal protection of the laws.

446. Defendants drew district lines in Senate Districts 5, 14, 20, 21, 28, 32, 38 and 40 to increase the number of black voters in the district, despite no requirement by the Voting Rights Act to draw increased minority districts.

447. Senate Districts 7, 18, 19, 22, 27, 31, and 41 are racial classifications designed to decrease the black voting age population of each district and increase the white voting age population.

448. Defendants failed to narrowly draw these districts to meet any compelling interest including any compelling interest in meeting the requirements of the federal Voting Rights Act.

449. The Senate Districts drawn in this way constitute an unjustified use of racial classifications that violates Plaintiffs' rights under the 14th Amendment and 42 U.S.C. 1983.

450. The individual and organizational plaintiffs suffer representational harms, impediments to their missions, activities and interests, a diminution in their ability to participate equally in the political process and inherent harm to their dignity by the racial discrimination and denial of equal protection described herein.

PLAINTIFFS' ELEVENTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF

(Violation of the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment of the U.S.
Constitution, Congressional Plan)

451. Plaintiffs rely herein upon all of the paragraphs of this Complaint.

452. The 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution forbids racial classifications unless narrowly tailored to serve a compelling interest.

453. Defendants drew district lines in Districts 1 and 12 to increase the number of black voters in the district despite no requirement by the Voting Rights Act to do so.

454. Districts 1 and 12 are racial classifications subject to strict scrutiny.

455. Defendants failed to narrowly draw these districts to meet any compelling interest including any compelling interest in meeting the requirements of the federal Voting Rights Act.

456. The excessive use of race in drawing Congressional Districts 1 and 12 violate Plaintiffs' rights under the 14th Amendment and 42 U.S.C. 1983.

457. The individual and organizational plaintiffs suffer representational harms, impediments to their missions, activities and interests, a diminution in their ability to participate equally in the political process and inherent harm to their dignity by the racial discrimination and denial of equal protection described herein.

PLAINTIFFS' TWELFTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF

(Violation of N.C. Gen. Stat. § 120-2.2, State House and State Senate)

458. Plaintiffs rely herein upon all of the paragraphs of this Complaint.

459. The General Assembly may not divide any precincts in redistricting the House and Senate unless and until the United States Department of Justice fails to preclear the House plan or Senate plan following N.C. Gen. Stat. § 120-2.2. In the event that the plans fail preclearance, the General Assembly may only divide the minimum number of precincts necessary to obtain preclearance.

460. The 2011 Senate Redistricting Plan divides 164 precincts in six counties not covered by Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act. Those six counties are: Durham, Forsyth, Johnston, Mecklenburg, New Hanover and Wake. The 2011 House Redistricting Plan divides 171 precincts in 16 counties not covered by Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act. Those counties are: Alamance, Brunswick, Buncombe, Duplin, Durham, Forsyth, Haywood, Johnston, Mecklenburg, Montgomery, Moore, New Hanover, Richmond, Sampson and Wake.

461. As the United States Department of Justice failed to preclear N.C. Gen. Stat. § 120-2.2, the statute does not govern the 40 counties covered by Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act. The statute, however, remains effective in the 60 counties not covered by Section 5.

462. In dividing precincts in counties not covered by Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act in both the 2011 House and Senate Redistricting Plans, Defendants violated N.C. Gen. Stat. § 120-2.2.

PLAINTIFFS' THIRTEENTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF
(Violation of N.C. Gen. Stat. § 163-261.2, Congressional Redistricting Plan)

463. Plaintiffs rely herein upon all of the paragraphs of this Complaint.

464. General Assembly may not divide any precincts in redistricting North Carolina's seats in the United States House of Representatives unless and until the United States fails to preclear that plan, following N.C. Gen. Stat. § 163-261.2.

465. In the event that the Plans fail preclearance, the General Assembly may only divide the minimum number of precincts necessary to obtain preclearance.

466. As the United States Department of Justice failed to preclear N.C. Gen. Stat. § 163-261.2 so the statute does not govern the 40 counties covered by Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act. The statute however, remains in effect for the 60 counties not covered by Section 5.

467. The 2011 Congressional Redistricting Plan divided 17 precincts in 8 counties not covered by Section 5. Those counties are: Alamance, Buncombe, Catawba, Davidson, Iredell, New Hanover, Randolph and Wake.

468. In dividing precincts in counties not covered by Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act, Defendants violated N.C. Gen. Stat. § 163-261.2.

2. Declare that the State Senate Redistricting Plan, the State House Redistricting Plan, and the Congressional Redistricting Plan establish racial classifications in violation of the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution and 42 U.S.C 1983.

If the General Assembly fails to do so, the Court will adopt its own plans that meet constitutional requirements.

10. Make all further orders as are just, necessary, and proper including orders providing for an expedited and shortened period of discovery and an expedited trial.

11. Require Defendants to pay Plaintiffs' costs and expenses.

12. Require Defendants to pay Plaintiffs' reasonable attorneys fees pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1988.

13. Grant Plaintiffs such other and further relief the Court deems just and proper.
